We will have a walking tour in Montpellier, visit the medieval mikveh, and see one of the synagogues serving the current Jewish community. We then travel to St. Remy in the heart of Provence. On the way we will see Pont du Gard, the famous Roman aqueduct from the first century CE.

Wed., July 2: St. Remy

In the morning we visit Arles, an ancient city on the Rhone River which was also the inspiration for many of Van Gogh's paintings. We will visit the magnificent Roman amphitheater and other Roman sites. While so many important Jewish figures of the past lived in Arles, today almost nothing Jewish remains. In the afternoon we head to Avignon, famous as the seat of the papacy for almost seventy years in the fourteenth century as well as the home of Rabbi Levi ben Gershom (Gersonides). We will visit the palace of the popes and the nineteenth century synagogue which stands where the medieval Jewish quarter was.

Thursday, July 3 Avignon

In the morning we visit Carpentras, one of the four communities in Southern France under the authority of the Pope ("the Pope's Jews"), and thus spared the various expulsions Jews in the rest of France were subjected to. Carpentras has the oldest synagogue in France still in use (over 650 years old), as well as a medieval mikveh, and was the center of Jewish life in papal-controlled France. Largely cut off from other Jewish communities, we will learn about how Carpentras preserved a variety of interesting customs. In the afternoon we will see the famous lavender fields of Provence and also visit Cavaillon, another of the communities of the “Pope’s Jews” whose synagogue still survives.
