"....Power can turn those who fled Egypt into Egyptians themselves."

Morality is an external limitation on the use of power. But it is an artificial limitation. It stems from the conscious choice of the person in power. Imagine two people together on a desert island. One has a black belt in karate, and the other has a degree in philosophy. The karate master holds the keys to a storehouse full of food and drink. The weak intellectual has to forage in nature. He is aware of the existence of the storehouse, and he wishes he could enjoy its delicious contents. When he is asked why he doesn't fight the man who has the keys, break into the storehouse, and eat to his heart's content, he submits that he is an ethical person. But more likely, what holds him back is not his high moral standards but his understanding of the dynamics of power.

What would happen if the philosopher were the one in possession of the keys and the karate master were the hungry one? What if the strong man were the one who restrained himself from breaking into the storehouse and stealing the delicious food? What if it were he who professed that he avoided the use of force on ethical grounds? Obviously it would be much easier to believe that he avoided striking his fellow because he held himself to a certain moral standard. We would understand that what held him back from using force was not the limits of his own power, but the restraining power of morality, that artificial limitation placed on man's power. A moral person is one who chooses to be weaker than he really is.

And so, power can be the enemy of morality. ... it is possible psychologically speaking to be both powerful and ethical at the same time? The challenge then is to give rules enough power to transform the world for better without being transformed for the worse.

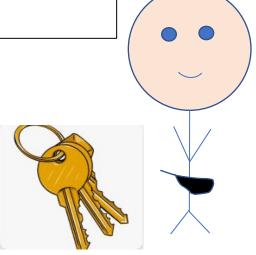

Devarim confronts the power trap.

When a person is in control, he should remember his servitude. When she is successful, she should remember her dependence. Micah Goodman, The Last Words of Moses, page 94

וְלַקַחְיָּבָ מֵרֵאשִּׁיתוּ כָּל־פּרְי הָאֲדָמָּה אֲשֶּׁר תַּבְיא מֶאַרְצְבְּ אֲשֶּׁר יְהֹוֶה אֱלֹהָיךָ נֹתַן לֻךְ וְשַמְתָּ בַשֶּׁנָא וְהָלַכְתָּ אֶל־הַמָּלֹּוֹם אֲשֶׁר יִבְחַל יְהֹוֶה אֱלֹהֶיךְ לְשַׁבָּן שְמִּוֹ שָׁם:

you shall take some of every first fruit of the soil, which you harvest from the land that your God יהוה is giving you, put it in a basket and go to the place where your God will choose to establish the divine name. (Devarim 26:2)

ָּוְלָקָּח הַכֹּהֵן הַשֶּׁנֶא מִיֶּדֶרְ וְהָנִּיחֹׁוֹ לִפְנֵּי מִוְבַּח יְהֹוָה אֱלֹהֶיךְ:

The priest shall take the basket from your hand and set it down in front of the altar of your God יהוה. (Devarim 26:4)

Etymologically, the word TeNEh is connected to the Aramaic TuNA meaning a burden or load, and the TeNEh therefore differs from the basket in that it is used not as a receptacle but rather as a container for conveyance of goods and possessions. (Rav Michael Hattin VBM.org)

:בָּרוּךְ טַנְאֲךָּ וּמִשְׁאַרְתּּ

Blessed shall be your basket and your kneading bowl.

(Devarim 28:5)

ָאָרוּר טַנְאֲךּ וּמִשְאַרְתּרֶ

Cursed shall be your basket and your kneading bowl. (Devarim 28:17)
